

After years of artistic exchange and discussion about their practice, Leonardo Guerra Seràgnoli, Francesca Andreoli, Maura Delpero and Santiago Fondevila Sancet decided to join forces as Cinedora, a production company focusing on audiovisual content with a strong authorial style.

Leonardo's proven background as a film-maker and producer in Italy, the United States and the United Kingdom is supported by Francesca's prestigious achievements as a producer of numerous independent debuts. She has worked with some of Italy's most exciting contemporary auteurs: from Leonardo Di Costanzo and Pietro Marcello to Alice Rohrwacher's Le Meraviglie and Lazzaro Felice, both award winners at Cannes. Similarly, Maura's career path between Italy and Argentina – whether as a writer, director or producer of documentaries, or her multi award-winning first fiction feature Maternal – perfectly combines with Santiago's multidisciplinary experience. Indeed, alongside his work as an actor, Santiago has developed a career as a producer and director of theater and independent cinema in Argentina.

Together, the four founders form an interdisciplinary, inclusive and international working group.
